Late Captain of Engineers, U. S. Army.
1 vol., 12mo., Cloth, $1.50.

Since the first edition of this work was published, two impor-tant wars have been commenced and terminated—that between the United States and the Republic of Mexico, and that between Russia and the Western Powers of Europu. In issuing a new edition of this work it is deemed proper to refer to these wars, and to apply the principles here discussed to the military oper-ations carried on in Mexico and the Crimes.

From The New-York Ledger.

"The Hart'ord Evening Press states that Mrs. Benry Ward Beecher is the author of the new book, entitled 'From Dawn to Daysight,' By a Minister's Wife." It is creating quite a sensation in the literary world. The letter to 'My Dearest Mary,' on the thirty-sixth page, is of itself worth the price of the book. The young lever who wrote it evidently had his 'eyes and ears open' at the time he penned it."

NEW SYSTEM of TEACHING FRENCH.

NEW SYSTEM of TEACHING FRENCH.

THE WHOLE FRENCH LANGUAGE.

By T. ROBERTSON.

617 pp. 12mo., $1 25... Key to do., 75 cents.

"The author of this system is Professor Robertson, a celebrated teacher in Paris, who has obtained a European reputation by the excellence of his method, and the success of his instructions. It claims to combine the most valuable feature in the systems of Mancaca. Ollendorf, Hamilton, and the old grammatical authorities, while it is free from the effects which diminish the practical utility of those methods. The text on while the volume is founded, is an original sind attractive narrative, presenting all the poculair idions of the French language, together with a complete vocabulary of the words most commonly occurring in familiar discourse. The principles illustrated in this portion of the work are impressed on the mind of the pupil by constant repetition in a series of judicious exercises; and the second part is devoid to a more profound analysis of the language, explaining in a collection of plan and simple roles, all the difficulties of French grammar and syntax. Professor Robertson's method is strictly progressive. The pupil is led on by easy and unconscious steps, from the radiments of the grammar to the most complicated forms of the language. The system combines great thoroughness with remarkable persplouty. Fro one can maker its details without making such professor productions of its literature, and with the necessary practice to speak French with correctness and facility. We do not heat the tore one mandar its details without making such professor productions of its literature, and with the necessary practice to speak French with correctness and facility. We do not heat the tore of a secution is already analysis. (Harrier Magazine. hesitate to recommend it to the notice of an unbatantial merits will be cause of education, believing that its substantial merits will bear the test of a scrutivizing examination."—[Harpers Magazine. One large and near duodecimo volume.

Price $1.25.

"The scere of this story is laid in one of the Southern cities on the Gulf. Bealas, the heroine, is an orphan of the Jane Eyre type, end-wed with such extraordinary strength of will and intellect, and so resolute a spirit of independence, that she conquers her way from the destitution and menial auties of childhood to the highest rank in the literary and social life. Proud, sensitive and self-reliant she sparus all offers of all and protection, the acceptance of which might lead the world to doort that she was the batter of her own success, and many of her acts have an appearance of wayward obstinacy that make her a purele to her friends. Not the least strange part of her conduct is her treatment of her generous, but stern-willed guardian, Dr. Hartwell, whose hand, notwithstanding her affection for him, she repeatedly and unaccountably refuses. The contrast of these characters, and the well planned conflict of wishes between them, are represented with meat effective skill, and give a continuous and absorbing interest to the story. But it is not the importunities of her lover, nor the severe experiences of powerly and the taunts of vulgar and ill-bred acquaintances in the circles in which, while pureling her education, he is compelled to move, that slone among the heroine. Her active mind is early perplayed with the thirst for knowledge and steptical questions as to the subject of religion and the destiny of the soil. Her doubts on the most abstrase metaphysical problems she endeavors to satisfy by study and inquiry, and though she seems to have markered the learning of the profoundest thinkers on the aubject, alse at last finds rest only in the teachings of revelation.

"It is the evidence of the possession of this learning on the part of the writer, not less than the attractions of the story, that sives interest to the question of authorship. The writer, Miss Evans, is a lady of Mobile, hardly twenty-three years of age, who, it is said, can fairly lay daim to
